What is a tulasi mala and is it made of gold?

Gold Jewelry & Accessories · https://www.purejewels.com/faqs/gold-jewelry-accessories/what-is-a-tulasi-mala-and-is-it-made-of-gold/

A Tulasi mala (also spelt Tulsi mala) is a sacred necklace or rosary made from the wood or stems of the Tulasi plant, also known as Holy Basil. It holds deep spiritual significance in Hinduism, particularly among followers of Lord Vishnu and Krishna.

What Is a Tulasi Mala?

- Traditionally crafted from the woody stems of the Tulasi plant, the mala consists of small, round beads strung together.
- It is used for chanting mantras (japa) and worn for spiritual protection and devotion.
- Commonly seen among Vaishnavas, it is considered a symbol of purity, discipline, and devotion to God.

Is It Made of Gold?

Traditionally, the sacred significance of a Tulasi mala lies in its natural wooden beads from the Tulsi plant. While the beads themselves are not made of gold, at PureJewels, each mala is hand-knitted using authentic Tulsi beads, with the wire and caps meticulously crafted in 22ct gold.

This approach honours the spiritual essence of the mala while enhancing it with the elegance and purity of fine gold—making it suitable for both devotional practice and meaningful gifting.

Symbolism & Usage

- Wearing a Tulasi mala is believed to offer spiritual protection, keep one mindful of divine presence, and encourage a devotional lifestyle.
- It is usually worn around the neck or used in meditative prayer.

- In traditional practice, it is treated with great respect and is not worn casually.

At PureJewels, we offer beautifully crafted Tulsi malas, hand-knitted in 22ct gold—honouring tradition while elevating it with timeless elegance. These malas preserve the spiritual essence of Tulasi while incorporating fine gold craftsmanship, making them perfect for devotional use or gifting with meaning.

Explore Tulsi Malas in 22ct Gold