If you are considering sell my gold ring, the value of the ring may depend on several factors.

The purity and weight of the gold are important considerations. Gold rings may be made from different carats, including 9ct, 14ct, 18ct and 22ct gold. A hallmark or fineness mark can help identify the purity.

If you are searching for sell my gold ring near me, you may also want to consider whether the ring contains a diamond or another gemstone. A gemstone may have value beyond the gold content of the ring.

The design, age and condition of the ring may also be relevant. Antique or collectible rings may have additional value that should be considered separately from their metal content.

Before selling a gold ring, check for hallmarks and keep any certificates or documentation relating to gemstones where possible.
