What Should I Know Before Selling My Gold Jewellery?

Before selling old gold jewellery or deciding to sell unwanted gold, there are several factors you should consider.

First, check your jewellery for hallmarks or fineness marks. These can provide information about the purity of the gold.

Next, consider the condition and type of the item. Broken jewellery may still contain valuable gold, while jewellery containing diamonds or other gemstones may have value beyond the gold itself.

You should also consider whether your jewellery has any antique, collectible or sentimental value. In some cases, an item may be worth more because of its design or history than its metal content alone.

Keep any receipts, certificates or other documentation relating to your jewellery where possible.

Understanding your gold jewellery before selling can help you make a more informed decision about the best way to proceed.
